Crawford & Company holds second Global Day of Service

LONDON - For the second year in a row, more than 1,200 Crawford & Company employees helped others around the world on Saturday 2nd October as part of the Company's annual Global Day of Service.

In the UK, Crawford employees from every region participated in a wide variety of volunteering projects designed to give something back to their local communities. Staff from London, for example, assisted with pet therapy sessions at an Epsom rehabilitation centre for recuperating members of the armed forces. A major project in Belfast involved employees helping with general gardening and cleaning duties at a school for children with physical disabilities. Other activities included: working at a kitchen for the homeless in Stockport, spending the day helping out at a city farm in Nottingham and assisting at a care home in Hull. Company employees also served their communities individually if they were not able to join a group project.

Benedict V. Burke, Senior Vice President and Chief Executive Officer, UK & Ireland, who again helped coach a local youth football team on the day, said: "I am pleased to see so many Crawford colleagues, for the second year running, giving up their free time over a weekend to help others."

“As we have in the past, we continue to support a number of community initiatives financially, but we also know that when we roll up our collective sleeves and work together to help our communities, the results are tremendous,” said Crawford President and Chief Executive Officer Jeffrey T. Bowman. “I am proud of the generosity our employees and their family members showed to the towns and cities where we live and work in our second Global Day of Service.”
